You're implementing a NetWare 6.5 network for a small business client: Jessica's Bakery. There is only one server in the network. You've named the server BAKERY1 and installed it into an eDirectory tree named JESSICASBAKERY-TREE. You've used a random password generator to create a password for the tree's Admin user. To ease administration, you've located the server next to the Point of Sale system in the customer area of the bakery. You deployed Universal Password on the server. All workstations have Novell Client 4.9 installed on them. You created a NFAP share on the server for the SHARED and the FINANCE directories on the server's DATA volume. Does this configuration meet Novell's security recommendations?

A. Yes, all Novell security guidelines have been met.
B. No, the server should be placed in a locked closet or room.
C. No, you shouldn't use Universal Password with Novell Client version 4.9.
D. No, you shouldn't use the business name in the server or eDirectory tree names.
E. No, you shouldn't create NFAP shares for directories containing financial information.
F. No, you shouldn't use a random password generator for the Admin password. It's easy to hack.

Question No : 9 - (Topic 0)

Your company's business procedures require the use of triplicate forms. To accommodate this, you have secured an older dot-matrix printer to deploy in your network. It doesn't have a network interface. It will be connected directly to one of your server's LPT ports using an IEEE 1284 parallel cable. You use Novell Distributed Print Services (NDPS) to provide print services to your users. This printer doesn't have an embedded printer agent. Can you use it with NDPS?

A. Yes, all prerequisite requirements have been met.

B. No, the NDPS manager doesn't support older dot-matrix printers.

C. No, the NDPS broker is incompatible with the IEEE 1284 standard.

D. No, NDPS doesn't support printers that don't have an embedded printer agent.

E. No, a printer agent can't be created for printers that connect to the server with a parallel cable.
